O'Connell at Canterbury.

O'Connell used to relate a good story of his first visit to Canterbury catheral. which was the scene of a Catholic pilgrimage recently. He inquired from the verger the exact spot of the death of Thomes a Becket, and then knelt down reverently and kissed it. The verger in terror told O'Connell that the dean would instantly dismiss him If he were to allow Popish work like that. O'Connell asked him his fee for showing a visitor round the catheral He said one shilling; O'Connell gave him half a crown; whereupon the verger said: "You may kiss the stone again, sir, without any additional charge, and I will look out and tell you if I see the dean coming."—Westminster Gazette.

Itched and Scratched Until Blood Ran -$50 Spent on Useless Treatments-Disease Seemed Incurable

CURED BY CUTICURA FOR $1.50

My baby boy broke out on both cheeks with exems. It was the itchy, watery kind and unless we kept his little hands wrapped up all the time, he would claw his face till the blood streamed claw his face till the blood streamed down. The physician gave an cintment which was so severe that my babe would screen when it was put on. We changed doctors and medicines until we had spent fifty dollars or more and baby was getting worse. I was so worn out watching and caring for him night and day that I almost felt sure the disease was incurable. I bought only a dollar and a half's worth of the Cuticura Remedies and they entirely cured him. Mrs. W. M. Comerer, Burnt Cabins, Pa., Sept. 15, 1908."

RECOVERED FROM SNAKE BITE. How Ranchman Treated Wound When

the right leg in the Santa Ana mountains last Saturday, John McCornick, a rancher of Grapeland, saved his life by making an incision with his pocket knife and inserting a piece of the reptile's flesh in the wound. He bandaged it tightly and walked seven hours before he reached his ranch, where he could receive medical treatment. Dr. Summer J. Quint was called from Los Angeles to attend McCornick. When he arrived he found that his patient was suffering from a slight poisoning. He declares that McCornick saved his life by his own treat-

McCornick was hunting through scrub oak when he felt a peculiar sting in his leg. He looked down and saw the snake dragging on the ground as he walked. Its fangs had become fastened in his leggings and it was unable to withdraw them.

With the butt of his gun McCornick knocked the snake off and then crushed its head with his heel. As quickly as possible he ran into the open and carried the snake with him. When he bared his leg he squeezed all the blood be could out of the two punctures which the fangs had made. Then he opened a gash, cutting through the two wounds and letting out the blood and poison. He cut a piece of flesh out of the wound. McCornick used his handkerchief for bandages and then handkerchief for bandages and then it tled his leg again just above the knee to stop the poison from working through his system.

McCornick was miles from any settle ment where he could secure medical attention, so he started back to Grape land. His leg pulsated with pain and he soon became deathly sick. In his weakened condition he was compelled to rest on the road time and again. When he finally reached home he was almost exhausted and his leg was dreadfully swollen and almost black.

McCornick says that his treatment was famous among the Indians for snake bites and he has known of a number of instances where its application has saved lives.-Los Angeles

IMPROVEMENTS AT STORRS

Bitten by a rattlesnake in the calf of Hearing on Appropriations for Buildings at Connecticut Agricultural College.

Hariford, June 1.—The various appropriations for the improvements at the Connecticut Agricultural college, which have been passed upon favorably by the committee on agriculture, came before the committee on appropriations this afternoon, when the different bills providing for a new diming hall and four cottages, buildings for instruction in the poultry department, a water tower, tank and windmill, a state road from the college to the Eagleville milroad station and the estimated expenses of the experiment station. Trustee B C. Patterson handled the hearing on behalf of the college and first called on President Beach to present the college's needs, which he did in a very concise and graphic manner.

the college's needs, which he did in a very concise and graphic manner.

Describing the institution as a "Ind grant college," President Beach first went into the Inancial condition of the college. Its annual income comes from three sources, $8,750 from the federal land grant, $40,000 from the Morrill fund and $25,000 from the state of Connecticut. The Morrill fund grows $5,000 per year until in 1911 it reaches $50,000 annually. The financial statement for the past year comes to $4,212 but of this $4,101 was expended for the steel water tower, tank and windmill was so plain that Dr. Beach didn't find it necessary to enlarge on this subject to any extent and he went on to the other needs of the college. He explained that there was a great need of dormitory room and that the college had not now an officer of the United

The college has a line of 100 students and has almost sufficient equipment to give education to 150 male students, which form the requirements to be met before the government will supply the officer from the active list of the army, and the government will pay house rentfor the officer when a house can be provided.

for the officer when a house can be provided.

The bill which covers this matter provides for a new dining hali and four cottages, at a cost of $30,000. At present there is no dining hall which will accommodate all of the students and the tables have to be set twice, it is desired to build a two story dining hall building and in the second story have class rooms for draughting and mechanical drawing classes. The dining hall planned will seat from 200 to 225 students at one time. The size of the building on the ground is 40x100 feet.

The four cottages which are included in this appropriation will make it possible for dormitory room now occu-

In this bill its also carried an appropriation of $5,000 for furnishing and fitting up the horticultural building which has been constructed under an appropriation made by the last general assembly.

President Beach went into the general conditions surrounding the Connecticut college to some extent. "It isn't a college," said he, "but an agricultural high school. We now withhold the degree because we are able to give only three years of a college course and not four. There is no reason why the college at Storrs shouldn't be on a par with that at Amherst or at Kingston or the agricultural department of Cornell university.

"Half of our graduating class this year fifteen students, are going away to college because we are unable to give them all of the education which they feel they require. Six are going to agricultural colleges," said Dr. Beach, in answer to a question from a member of the committee, concerning how many of the Storrs graduates went into farming pursuits, "and thirteen of the remaining fifteen are going into agriculture."

He went on to say that the trustees of the institution and the faculty had decided to make the course a five-year course beginning next fall and that this will increase the number of students at the institution, and in the course of a short time make it necessary to add five members to the present faculty. The college is able to pay their salaries and the other incidental expenses from the Morrill fund. Dr. Beach referred to other needs of the institution which subsequent legislatures would have to be asked for, and wreed that all of the recomment. Dr. Beach referred to other needs of the institution which subsequent legislatures would have to be asked for, and urged that all of the recommendations of the agricultural committee be acted upon favorably by this committee and this legislature in order rot only to meet present needs, but to clear the way.

The Battle of Life.

There is more adventure in the life of the working man who descends as a common soldier into the battle of life than in that of the millionaire who sits apart in an office, like Von Moltke, and only directs the maneuvers by tel Give me to hear about the career of him who is in the thick of business; to whom one change of market means an empty stomach and to another a copious and savory meal. This is not the philosophical but the human side of economics; it interests like a story; and the life of all who are thus situated partakes in a small way of the charm of Robinson Crusoe; for every step is critical, and human life is presented to you naked and verging to its lowest terms .- Steven-

Doctors' Fees. "Do you mean to tell me," asked a learned counsel, when he was crossexamining Mr. Whistler in a wellknown case, "that for a piece of work which only takes you half an hour you can charge so extravagant a price?" And Mr. Whistler's answer remains the classical apology of all learned and technical skill. "Yes," he replied, "but I am charging for the knowledge and experience of a lifetime." A doctor's fee may seem enormous to a patient who is aware that he has only seen him for 20 minutes. It still remains true that what is charged represents that accumulated mass of hardly earned experience which distinguishes the medical proficient from the mere amateur.-London Telegraph.

India Marriage Lottery. Every year in the Rumal country, in India, a marriage lottery is held, usually in October. The names of all the marriageable girls and of young men desirous of matrimony are written on slips of paper and thrown into earthen pots. One of each kind is drawn out at a time by a wise man.

The youth whose name is drawn out obtains a letter of introduction to the young woman whose name accompanies his, and then all that remains for him to do is to start his love making at once. The majority of these fortuitous courtships turn out admirably

One of these days is yesterday. Yesterday, with all its cares and frets, with all its pains and sorrows, has passed forever beyond the power of my control, beyond the reach of my recall. I can not undo an act that I wrought; I can not recall a word that I said; can not calm a storm that raged on yesterday. All that it holds of my life, of regret, or sorrow, or wrong, is in the hands of the mighty love that can bring oil out of the rock and sweet waters out of the bitterest desert—the love that can make the wrong things right, and turn mourning into laughter. Save for the beautiful memories, sweet and tender, that linger like perfume of dried roses in the heart of the day that is gone, I have nothing to do with yesterday. It was mine; now it belongs to God.

And the other day I do not worry over is to-morrow. To-morrow, with all its possible cares, its burdens, its sorrows, its perils, its poor performings and its bitter mistakes, is as far beyond my reach of mastership as is its dead sister, yesterday.-Banner of

ARNOLD'S "GONDOLAS" IN SIGHT.

Sunk by Him in Lake Champiain. They Can Be Seen on the Bottom.

Parkman's history describes the gondolas" which Benedict Arnold destroyed on Lake Champlain when he was forced to retreat before superior British forces in 1776. The wreckage may still be seen on a calm day at the bottom of Arnold's bay. A sojourner in that region thus describes a recent visit to the bay: "The water is lower in the lake than the oldest inhabitants can re member. It has gone down six feet since June. We found one of the 'gondolas.' These were evidently stout, wide boats, very large and strong, propelled by oars, as the two oak ribs sticking up from the keel of the one we discovered plainly showed. These ribs are about five or six inches thick.

"After a long struggle we sawed off a plece with two rusty nails in it; nails that are really large spikes. As the water is about seven feet deep and the top of the ridge was about two feet below the surface, the tank of sawing about a foot off was heroic. It is hard oak, now quite black.

"There were already six saw cuts in the piece we secured. Some other travelers had been at it and had got discouraged, which is not surprising."

A Star on Stars. He was one of the leading actors of America-of international fame-and he was talking off guard.

"Women certainly have the best of it on the stage," he said, "although they may not always think so. Whatever a man attains in the dramatic profession he must toil for, but a woman with a little bit of talent can make a hit if she has a pretty face or figure that will place her in a brief time and almost without labor in a position of financial independence—to say nothtrust I'm not envious, but sometimes I feel a bit discouraged when I contrast my years of toil with the hop, skip and jump that lands a roundfaced girl at the front."

The Man in the Home. Some Newark men whose wives go a great deal to women's olubs are preparing a memorial. They will ask the ladies to adopt the fashion of long apron strings again. Most aprons nowadays, they report, are made with short strings that reach barely around the owners' waists and are pinned together. When a man tries to put on one of these aprons, they say, he has to tuck it into the top of his trousers or twine it around his suspenders, both arrangements being uncertain and unsatisfactory. The gentlemen of the committee pray that apron strings be made long enough to go around a man's waist and be tied.—Newark News.
